“Organization of the Year” nomination highlights new growth and continued impact in the community

(LOS ANGELES) (June 6, 2015) –Levitt & Quinn Family Law Center, a nonprofit organization providing family law services and representation to low- and moderate-income families in Los Angeles County, was nominated by the Los Angeles Business Journal’s Nonprofit & Corporate Citizenship Awards program as an “Organization of the Year.” The award recognizes nonprofits who demonstrate mission impact in the community, organizational excellence in management and operations, and innovation in building a sustainable organization. “It is an honor to be recognized for our work,” said Tai Glenn, Executive Director of Levitt & Quinn. “The staff and volunteers at Levitt & Quinn have worked tirelessly for over three decades to ensure access to family law services for the neediest members of the community, and recognition by the Los Angeles Business Journal is a testament to their dedication and expertise.

“Half of the children in California are involved in a family law case during their childhood and the vast majority of those children's families cannot afford legal representation in court. Levitt & Quinn’s attorneys strive to resolve the issues that keep children and families from enjoying a healthy, happy and fruitful future. The nomination for this award reflects the profound impact that providing these kinds of services can have in our community.”

“Levitt & Quinn has grown significantly as an organization over the last several years, in part due to the leadership of Tai Glenn and the ambitious goals set out at the beginning of her tenure as Executive Director,” said board president Dinah Ruch. “In 2014, for the first time, Levitt & Quinn’s budget surpassed one million dollars, and the number of kids impacted annually by programs like the Adoption Project and Kids Fund reached the thousands.”

Newly elected member of the Board of Directors and Chief Marketing Officer at the LA Tourism & Convention Board Don Skeoch is thrilled about his role guiding the communications strategies as the organization’s impact reaches new heights. “Levitt & Quinn has been doing incredible work in Los Angeles for many years, and the organization has reached an important inflection point in its development.”
